DETAILED ACTIONClaim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1, 3, 5, 7, 8, 12, 13, 15, 16, 17, 18, 20-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Simmons as applied to the claims above, and further in view of Drake. The patent to Simmons teaches structure substantially as claimed including surface (1), first and second leg assemblies (4), back (3), raised portion (8), base (6), the only difference being the materials used in the construction thereof and the use of hinges. However, the patent to Drake teaches the use of wood in the formation of the structures of a supporting surface and the use of hinges. It would have been obvious and well within the level of one having ordinary skill in the art to modify the structure of Simmons to include alternative conventional materials, and alternative folding means, as taught by Drake since such structures are used in the same intended purpose of providing characteristics of the materials used and an alternative folding means, thereby providing structure as claimed. It is noted that the fold lines of Simmons are hinges as claimed. In regard to claim 27, the use of different dimensions are matters of desirability and would have been within the level of ordinary skill in the art such dimensions providing a "means to adjust the angle". The patent to teaches structure substantially as claimed as discussed above. The particular size and dimensions are matters of desirability and ergonomics which would have been obvious and well within the level of ordinary skill in the art since no unobvious advantage of the particular dimensions is unknown, thereby providing structure as claimed.

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Simmons as applied to the claims above, and further in view of Patterson. The patent to Simmons teaches structure substantially as claimed as discussed above the only difference being the materials used in the construction thereof. However, the patent to Patterson teaches the use of different types of plastics used in the formation of the structures of a supporting surface. It would have been obvious and well within the level of one having ordinary skill in the art to modify the structure of Simmons to include alternative conventional materials, as taught by Patterson, thereby providing structure as claimed.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 09-18-02 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In regard to applicant's remarks regarding the patent to Simmons. The patent to Simmons teaches a portable foldable structure including a raised top surface. In response to applicant's argument that the examiner's conclusion of obviousness is based upon improper hindsight reasoning, it must be recognized that any judgment on obviousness is in a sense necessarily a reconstruction based upon hindsight reasoning. But so long as it takes into account only knowledge which was within the level of ordinary skill at the time the claimed invention was made, and does not include knowledge gleaned only from the applicant's disclosure, such a reconstruction is proper. In the instant case, the combination of reference include alternative conventional structures used in the same intended purpose. It is repeated that the use of conventional alternative, well known structures as a replacement or alternative structure is well within the level of ordinary skill in the art. In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. In this case, the suggestion to combine is the fact that the references use and teach conventional structures, such as two conventional hinge structures. The interchangeability of such conventional structures, such structures used for the same intended purpose of providing a hinged connection of panel members is motivation in itself.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

Art Unit: 3637
